DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

This communication is in response to the RCE of 8/30/2006. All changes made to the Claims have been entered. Accordingly, Claims 1-19 are currently pending in the application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over ExtremeWare Software User Guide, by Extreme Networks, Inc, hereinafter referred to as ExtremeWare.

Regarding claim 1, 2, 4, 5, 10, 12, 13, 14, ExtremeWare Networks, Inc. discloses of an ESRP (router protocol) that allows multiple switches to provide redundant routing services to users (a network failover transition system (redundant routing services) for a plurality of ports (switches) communicating over a VLAN, Chapter 10, Page 10-1).

ExtremeWare further discloses;

of one switch that actively provides layer 2 switching for each VLAN and that the switch performing the forwarding for a particular VLAN is considered the "master" for that VLAN (a first switch having a master mode and a standby mode, said first switch running only a layer 2 protocol and configured to provide switching between said ports (forwarding), while in said master mode, 10-2);

of other participating switches for the VLAN are in standby mode (a second switch having a master mode and a standby mode, said second switch running only a layer 2 protocol and configured to providing switching between said ports while in said master mode, wherein said second switch is in said standby mode when said first switch is in said master mode, and said second switch is in said master mode when said first switch is in said standby mode (relinquishes status, 10-2 and 10-4);

that if any of the configured tracking mechanisms fail, the master ESRP switch relinquishes status as master and remains in standby mode for as long as the tracking mechanism continues to fail (wherein said first switch is configured, upon a detection of a network failure, to restart auto-negotiation of said ports, and to transition to said standby mode; and wherein said second switch is configured, upon said detection of a network failure, to transition to said master mode, 10-4).

ExtremeWare however fails to specifically disclose the limitation of having at least one of said ports flushes a layer 2 forwarding data base and rebroadcast for a new path. ExtremeWare however discloses that Dynamic FDB (forwarding data base) entries associated with the VLAN are flushed one the change is committed (6-14) and that entries in the database are removed if, after a period of time, the device has not transmitted (7-2). Thus it would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art to have one of said ports flush a layer 2 forwarding database and rebroadcasts for a new path if that specific switch has not transmitted for some time (standby mode) in order to efficiently determining new paths in order to provide redundant routing services to users in case of a network failure.

Regarding claim 2, 11, ExtremeWare discloses said VLAN is part of an Ethernet network (Ethernet switches, 1-1).

Regarding claim 6, 7, 15, 16, ExtremeWare discloses said ports utilize ARP (switch supports ARP, 11-5).

Regarding claim 8, 9, 17, and 18, ExtremeWare discloses said network failure is detected using ping track (ESRP ping tracking, 10-4-10-5).

Regarding claim 19, ExtremeWare discloses a maximum of four switches participate in providing redundant services to a single VLAN, and that one switch is the Master while the other switches are in standby mode (10-2).
